First Thursday....

March

Jeff Lackey presented an informative presentation regarding the new web site that will be ready soon. It looks very good.

Allen Dawson explained and gave examples of the new features in CS6. He then reviewed some of the basics of Photoshop generally, emphasizing the three things to make your Photoshop experience more enjoyable, more efficient, and more likely to make your pictures look better - keyboard shortcuts, understanding and using layer masks, and making your own actions. The best workflow starts with using RAW processing before taking the picture into Photoshop proper, and examples of that were presented.

April

Sandra Varellas will be presenting an introduction to shooting, processing and creating time-lapse movies with a DSLR camera. She will show movies she has created and explain the workflow and the software used. She will also provide information about resources that can be accessed on the internet for those who want to learn more about the process. The photo above is from her presentation.

James Welling: Monograph

February 02, 2013 to May 05, 2013

Artist James Welling has created beautiful and challenging photographs for over thirty-five years. Operating in the hybrid ground between painting and sculpture and traditional photography, he is a foremost photographic practitioner enthralled with the possibilities of the medium. Since the mid-1970s, Welling's practice has unfailingly shifted to address an impressive array of issues and ideas: the tenets of realism and transparency, abstraction and representation, optics and description, personal and cultural memory, and the material and chemical nature of photography. His program, in particular, helps refine our definition of a photograph while offering a meaningful new paradigm for contemporary art.

THINGS TO SEE, DO, AND SHOOT

The Dayton Art Institute

Watershed: 100 Years of Photography along the Great Miami River.

February 23 2013 - May 5 2013

This exhibition is based on a new publication by the Miami Conservancy District that contrasts historical images documenting the flood and its aftermath with contemporary photographs depicting similar views. This exhibition presents the medium of photography and the practice of photographers as it has developed during the past 100 years. Historical materials, including postcards, period equipment and glass slides, document eight cities along the Great Miami River – Piqua, Troy, Dayton, West Carrollton, Miamisburg, Franklin, Middletown and Hamilton.

Outing to Burgess Falls State Park

David Richardson—April 13-14

We will leave early Saturday morning (an exact time is still to be announced) making our way south to the Alvin C. York homestead, and mill. I'd like to have everyone bring something light for a potluck lunch (such as cheese, sausages, veggie trays... don't want anything too heavy). From there we will head to the Burgess Falls State park. Once we are done there we will bed down for the night (I may have a sunrise/sunset stop at this point, but I'm still waiting for land permission). Sunday will be spent in the Taylor Hollow Nature preserve. I will bring a small presentation to the March meeting with more info.

Basic Photography Workshop

This will be for beginners and those who think they need their memory refreshed. We cover things like apertures, shutter speeds and how they work together to enhance a photograph. The date, time and place will be: Saturday April 6 at the Clark County Public Library meeting room from 9:30 until noon. "Sign up sheet and maps will be available at the March meeting." Also, you may contact Zane Williams at the March meeting.
